IN MEMORIAM.

All that is mortal of President James A. Garfield will be laid in the tomb to-day. The sadness of the hour will take the mind back to the 4th of May, 1885, when the funeral of President Lincoln took place at Springfield. The funeral honors paid to that great and good man surpassed in magnificence, as well as in their manifestations of the intensity of sorrow, those ever bestowed on any President, and were not equalled in the funeral pomp of the obsequies of any monarch of ancient or modern times. Throughout the length and breadth of the land the funeral day was observed, and with a solemnity and genuine sadness of heart such as no day of mourning had ever witnessed in the history of the world. The funeral train had passed over seventeen hundred miles of road, and as the solemn procession moved westward the scenes of popular grief and of heartfelt sorrow and respect were manifested. Arches, columns, monuments, banners, and flags arranged with tasteful and loving care lined the entire route from Washington to Springfield, and it was heralded on its course by the tolling of bells and the echoing of minute-guns.

A scene very similar to that is the one which is witnessed to-day in Ohio. It is not this Nation alone that sheds tears and pays honors to the dead, but the civilized world. The nations that had been watching the death-bed for so many long and weary weeks, will be present in spirit at Cleveland to-day. Like the people of our own land, they waited "in strained anxiety for each beating pulse of the dying President," and now that he is gone they share the grief of the American people. Business has been suspended throughout the country—North, South, East, and West—and the whole people join this day in paying fitting respect to lamented dead.

It has been said that often in his lifetime President Garfield expressed a wish that his body might be buried in Lake View cemetery at Cleveland. He had a very touching reason for expressing this wish. The cemetery lies upon a high wooded ridge in the eastern outskirts of the city, over-looking the beautiful waters of Lake Erie. "Within sight of the highest ground in the cemetery is the place where the farmer boy whom destiny had marked for great achievements and great suffering first saw the lake while chopping wood to earn money to educate himself." Not more than ten miles to the South is the site of the log cabin in which the martyred President was born. Near the same spot still stands the little house which he and his brother built with their own hands; and only twenty miles east, on the same ridge, is Mentor, a place he loved so well and longed to see while on his bed of eighty days of unparalleled suffering.

It is fitting and proper that the beautiful cemetery near which he was born, should possess the ashes of the illustrious statesman, but "his fame belongs to the Nation." Though his body be laid in the grave to-day, his name will live as long as this Nation endures, and his royal deeds, his manly character, his sweet and brave nature, his influence for good, and his touching and grand death-bed example, can not be forgotten. No, Garfield, like Lincoln, will be immortal. Both were once poor boys struggling for bread and thirsting for knowledge, and yet they climbed to the level of kings, and both died martyrs. May the Nation to-day over the open grave of Garfield, pledge itself to be true to his memory, and may his spirit continue to govern the people.

Barton the accomplished and gentlemanly stage-robber, of Colorado, has been sentenced to imprisonment for life. It will be remembered that last July he stopped a stage coach containing fourteen persons, and without any assistance robbed the entire crowd, and without making any threats or using any loud language.

A FEARFUL TORNADO.

A Huge Torrent of Rain and a Tornado Visits Quincy, Illinois.

Tearing Down and Unroofing Many Houses and Stores.

Killing and Maiming a Large Number of People.

The Arkansas Authorities After the Iron Mountain Train Robbers.

Death of Michael O'Brien, at Darien, Aged 108.

A FEARFUL TORNADO.

QUINCY, Sept. 24.—A heavy cloud from the west broke over this city this evening in a huge torrent of rain and a tornado of wind. The greatest damage was done on Front street. The upper walls of Joel Harris & Son's tobacco factory were blown in, burying a large number of employees and killing Henry Workman.

Henry Martin, a boy, is dangerously hurt. Henry Bowen, a leg broken. John Cole, dangerously hurt in the head.

Joe Hurdin, badly bruised in back and thigh. Wright Harris, slightly hurt.

The damage to the building is about $2,000. The Castle Mill, just north of the factory, suffered the loss of its stock, and a part of the roof, and some damage to the west walls.

George Ruff, the second engineer, was fatally hurt. The loss on stock and building is about $5,000.

The large stove-foundry of Bennett, Duffy & Co., suffered next. The molding-room was entirely demolished, and great damage done to patterns. George Rowland was instantly killed. He leaves a wife and three children.

John Ellerbrecht, 16 years old, was crushed, and died on the way home. Frank Smith and Alonzo Wilson were both dangerously hurt by falling timbers and walls. The damage to this foundry is fully $10,000.

At Comstock & Castle's foundry a large portion of the roof was carried away, and smoke-stack blown down, and a portion of the molding room demolished. W. A. Miller had his hip-joint dislocated and was otherwise injured, and John Stockwell was dangerously hurt. The damage to the property is estimated at $6,000.

Still farther south on Front street, John Potter's bucket-factory was partially unroofed and damage done to the extent of $900.

The city work-house was also unroofed and some other slight damage done.

The roof was blown off the main building of Dick Brothers' brewery, but the amount of damage is not estimated.

Stewart's large ice-house on the bay was unroofed, and the roof of the railroad round-house is partly gone.

The rose window of St. Boniface's church, Main street, was blown bodily to the street. Damage $1,200.

The Webster school building lost the large window in the upper story, and the south wall of the second and third stories was blown in.

St. Francis college, the Franklin school, the Congregational and the First Baptist churches, all suffered more or less, but it is impossible to estimate the amount of damage.

The telephone system of the city is an entire wreck, not a wire remaining intact.

Altogether the storm was the most destructive to life and property of any that has ever visited this city.

A large number of business houses, chiefly on Front and Fourth streets, were injured and stocks of goods damaged by broken roofs.

Several of the streets are impassable from prostrated trees, pieces of roofs, signs, and miscellaneous debris.

She Passed It Along.

"I send you my testimonial in reference to Spring Blossom, having taken it for dyspepsia, and receiving almost immediate relief. I passed it to my neighbor, who is using it with same results."

Price 50 cents, trial bottles 10 cents. Sold by A. J. Roberts, and Sherer & Co.

OBITUARY.

Death of Michael O'Brien, aged 108 years.

DARIEN, Wis., Sept. 21.—Died at Darien Wis., Sept. 23, 1881, Michael O'Brien, aged 108 years and 3 months. He was born in County Kerry, Ireland, June 23, 1773, and came to America Dec. 27, 1852. He never had a day of sickness, and was never confined to a bed. He drank whiskey and smoked tobacco, the latter in excess, from 12 years of age. His intellect was unimpaired and only slightly enfeebled. There was no change in his health up to ten minutes before he died when he called to his daughter that he felt bad and guessed he was going, and sank to his last sleep.

THE TRAIN-ROBBERS.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 24.—No additional news has been received from the train-robbers. Gov. Churchill returned to-night from the scene of the robbery, and reports a large posse in pursuit in every direction. The Governor feels confident that the robbers will be captured within the next three days. The Southern Express Company had no messenger on the robbed train, and consequently suffered no loss. Col. A. L. Oleson, of the Southern Express, however, promptly tendered the services of himself and company to the Iron Mountain express to assist in the capture of the robbers and the recovery of the lost treasure. It is generally believed the robbers struck southward in the direction of Louisiana or Texas. Parties have gone in that direction in pursuit. Several detectives from St. Louis passed through the city this afternoon to take a hand in the chase. The reward of $26,500 it is thought will certainly effect their capture.

One or Two Aspects of Marriage.

In these midsummer days, when the social aspects of American life come most plainly into view, marriage is probably, if the truth were known, the foremost consideration in all classes. It is considered, but not talked of. It is the basis of every man's future, good or bad. Yet nobody, oddly enough, discusses it except the young people, who know nothing of it but by hearsay. Their contemplations and arguments upon it are interminable.

There are fewer early marriages in this country now than in any previous generation. One reason for this is that women are more self-supporting now, and less likely to marry young and without due consideration, for a maintenance. The other is that the style of living in each class is so much more costly than it was forty years ago that young men will not venture to marry on as small incomes.

Our fathers brought up families of a dozen boys and girls, educated and started them in life on an income which will now barely dress or feed a clerk or medical student. But our fathers were not members of clubs, and our mothers knew little or nothing of high or low art; the word aesthetic will not be found in any dictionary of those days—a fact which closed several currents of expense that drain our incomes now, with or against our will. There were, too, larger families in those days, whether the father argues that the social condition was healthier then, when the dwellings were poor and bare, the table was plain, and the heads of the household were rich in nothing but sturdy, hard-working sons and daughters, than now, when the luxurious homes have but few tenants, who have more leisure and ability to scan and understand different and wider outlooks into life than that of labor, is matter for discussion. More can be said, however, on each side of the question than is at first sight apparent.

In one respect, we undoubtedly have the advantage over the generation which went before us. Marriages made after the first flush of early youth is past are less likely to prove at middle age uncongenial. Especially is this true of the upper grades of men and women. Your intellectual plebeian, man of the mass, the commonplace, unreasoning, coarse-grained husband of wife, more likely to be a creature of habit than the man of finer nerves and higher mental calibre. He or she picks out a mate by a violent sudden impulse; a cheery lip, a pleasant smile, a becoming dress—protest? The thing is decided. Love and marriage are material matters, because they themselves are chiefly matter. This impulse gratified, other material wants come to the front in their life—food, clothes, the bringing up of children, the man and woman go to work, precisely from the same physical needs which drives the hawk aloft after he has chosen his mate and built a nest. The hawk does not concern himself about an intellectual sympathy with his mate; he does not outgrow her mental limit or feel immortal longings of which she knows nothing. He feeds her. She tends the young ones, and, barring an occasional squabble they are happy. There is the history of eight-tenths of married people.

There is a smaller class in whose love mental development and spiritual needs are of much more momentous import than physical needs and money-making. Such men and women, if they marry unwisely, are apt to grow away from front, or beyond, each other, and become the ever-increasing gap has a soundless hollow of human misery. The structure of American society opens the way to this special sort of domestic tragedy. The man of force and intellect has every opportunity to rise; but he cannot drag his wife up with him. We all know the pair. We have seen them in every condition and class. He married her twenty years ago, a pretty delicate young thing, ignorant and ill-bred as himself. He has pushed his way into a different social level; sunned and broadened his life and habits of thought in the society of books and of men of culture and refinement; she has grown more narrow, more ignorant, more weak than before in drudging in the kitchen and nursery. There are thousands of such cases in the country to-day, and the husband in such straits is as much to be pitied as the wife. God has not joined them together.

The number of marriages among very young and immature people is not only smaller of late years, but those between men and women considerably past their middle age have increased. Nobody but school-children, for whom love is a dream which belongs solely to the giggling age, now feels inclined to laugh at such alliances. They are often matters of convenience, founded on motives of respect, comfort or suitability, which usually result as happily as any action of grave import, carefully weighed and resolved upon by experienced people, is likely to do. Why should not an intelligent, home-loving man and woman, left companionless in middle age, form a partnership of mutual help and comfort for their old age? Often, however they are sincere love-matches, founded on that real passion which grows more profound, if less sensitive, with the strengthening of other faculties. Another change in the statistics of married life, if we can call them so, is that, while regard for the sanctity of the marriage vow is each year less respected in our fast and fashionable class from Boston to San Francisco, the respect for it is growing stronger in the mass of the American people. The divorces which are obtained so easily in Indiana, and which bring on us such contempt from other nations, are for the larger part sought by naturalized citizens, not by native born Americans. It is a fact, and a most significant fact, that the Mormon community is wholly composed of foreigners and the children of foreigners who emigrated as Mormons.

Whatever may be our national sins, that of contempt for marriage and domestic ties does not belong to the mass of our people.—New York Tribune.

PROCLAMATION.

(To the Citizens of Janesville.)
I hereby recommend that on Monday, the 26th day of September, 1881, the day appointed for the burial of President James A. Garfield, the citizens of Janesville lay aside their usual avocations, and close all places of business from twelve o'clock noon until four o'clock p. m., and participate in the memorial services of the day.
A. P. LOVEJOY, Mayor.

One thousand tons Sugar Cane wanted. Kent's Shrap works are running day and night, crushing 90 tons of cane every 24 hours. Their capacity is such that growers can get their cane worked up immediately on its being delivered at the mill, thus saving the necessary loss caused by letting it dry for a number of days which in many cases causes them to lose half their crop of sirup. A load of cane which will yield from twelve to twenty gallons of sirup, if worked up immediately after cutting, will not yield more than six to ten gallons after laying two days.

Mother! Mother!! Mother!!! Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately—depend upon it; there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has not used it, who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Sold everywhere 25 cents a bottle.
